EDITORS' PREFACE

THE object of this series of translations is primarily to furnish students with short, cheap, and handy text-books, which, it is hoped, will facilitate the study of the particular texts in class under competent teachers. But it is also hoped that the volumes will be acceptable to the general reader who may be interested in the subjects with which they deal. It has been thought advisable, as a general rule, to restrict the notes and comments to a small compass; more especially as, in most cases, excellent works of a more elaborate character are available. Indeed, it is much to be desired that these translations may have the effect of inducing readers to study the larger works.

Our principal aim, in a word, is to make some difficult texts, important for the study of Christian origins, more generally accessible in faithful and scholarly translations.

In most cases these texts are not available in a cheap and handy form. In one or two cases texts have been included of books which are available in the official Apocrypha; but in every such case reasons exist for putting forth these texts in a new translation, with an Introduction, in this series.

INTRODUCTION

THE Papyri translated in this volume were found, probably all at Elephantine, together with others not included here, between the years 1898 and 1908. No. 27 was published by Euting in the Mémoires présentés . . . à l'Académie des Inscriptions (Paris, 1903); No. 11 by Cowley in the Proceedings of the Society of Biblical Archaeology for 1903; Nos. 5, 6, 8, 9, 11, 13-15, 20, 25, 28 by Sayce and Cowley in Aramaic Papyri Discovered at Assuan (London, 1906); the rest, published by Sachau in Aramäische Papyrus . . . (Leipzig, 1911), are now translated into English, mostly for the first time. The last two publications contain excellent facsimiles. The texts have given occasion to a very considerable literature, dealing with the many interesting questions which they raise in history, religion and language.¹

Documents on papyrus, such as these, have a special interest, because they preserve to us the actual words and writing of a remote past. In fact, they are records contemporary with the events to which they relate, and are therefore (like inscriptions) first-hand historical evidence, uncorrupted by the errors which inevitably appear when a text is transmitted by repeated copies through the centuries.² Inscriptions are also first-hand evidence, but they are as a rule short, formal, and concerned only with the greater events of history. Papyri not only tell us of public events, but also give us an insight into the private life and circumstances of the past.

¹ For fuller information the reader is referred to a complete edition, which, it is hoped, will be published as soon as circumstances permit.

² Thus No. 5 was rolled up, tied and sealed in 471 B.C., and was not opened again till 1904 in the Bodleian Library at Oxford.

The present texts, which are nearly all dated, cover practically the whole of the fifth century B.C. (494 to circ. 400), during which time Egypt was under Persian rule. They are dated by the regnal years of Darius I, Xerxes, Artaxerxes I, Darius II, and the Egyptian king Amyrtæus, and have been arranged here chronologically, so as to give something of an historical picture. They emanate from a hitherto unknown colony of Jews settled in the south of Egypt at Elephantine and Syene. Thus they are the earliest Jewish documents in existence (except one or two inscriptions) outside the Bible, and are a valuable contemporary illustration of the books of Ezra and Nehemiah.

The language in which they are written is Aramaic, a language distinct from, though closely allied to, Hebrew: not, as used to be thought, a debased form of Hebrew, but related to it somewhat as Italian is related to Spanish. And this Aramaic is, with some reservations, the same as that in which parts of the Book of Ezra are composed. We need not here discuss the reasons why that book is written partly in Hebrew and partly in Aramaic, but it may be pointed out that if Ezra wrote Aramaic, this is the sort of Aramaic he would write. It was, in fact, like modern French, the diplomatic¹ or international language of that time in the East, and was used by the Persian Government in the administration of the provinces, as we see from the version of the Behistun inscription (p. 96) sent to the colony in Egypt for their information. Even long before this time it was used in Babylonia by the royal scribes, as well as in everyday business,¹ and Ezra, as a "skilled scribe," must have been familiar with it. It was not because they were Jews that Ezra or the people of Elephantine employed it. The kind of writing used in the papyri is also that in which Ezra must have written his copy of the Law, and from which the modern square Hebrew character is lineally descended. Arguments as to the form of the text from his time onwards must therefore be based on this sort of writing and not on the old Hebrew.

As to the origin of the colony whose existence is here revealed to us, we have no evidence in the texts themselves. That it was Jewish, and conscious of being so, seems to be certain.² Individual members of it are described as Yehudi, "Jew," the community is called "the Jewish force," and the names of the people are good Jewish names of the post-exilic type, mostly ending in -iah.³ They were, however, not the only inhabitants of Elephantine, for we find names of various other nationalities, Babylonian, Persian, Egyptian, Arab, etc. The Jews lived apparently on equal terms with the people of other races, doing business with them, and even intermarrying without compunction.

Probably the connexion between Judæa and Egypt was always close, and Jewish settlers in Egypt must have become more numerous as trade increased; cf. e.g. Deut. 17¹⁶, Jer. 44. But this colony seems to have had a more definite origin. It was essentially military, since it is called the "Jewish force" (army or garrison), was divided into degalin (companies or detachments), and received pay and rations from the Government. It consisted, therefore, originally of mercenaries in the employment of the Government. Now, the writer of the letter of Aristeas¹ incidentally mentions (§ 13) that Psammetichus, King of Egypt, used Jewish mercenaries in his campaign against Ethiopia. This must be Psammetichus II (see Herodotus ii, 159), who reigned from 595 to 590 B.C., and the statement agrees very well with what we gather from these papyri. After the war the soldiers were settled in the two fortresses of Syene and Elephantine as a protection to the southern boundary of the kingdom. Possibly other Jewish settlers joined them there afterwards. At any rate they had their wives and families, who were also reckoned as members of a "company," like the men, and they held property and engaged in various civil pursuits. The members of other races were no doubt mercenaries by origin, enrolled in companies according to race, as was the case in Ptolemaic times. We sometimes find a man who is called a Jew of Elephantine elsewhere described as an Aramæan of Syene (but never a Jew of Syene), which seems to show that the Jews, as such, were stationed at Elephantine, while various western Asiatics, called vaguely Aramæans, were at Syene. The latter, as the more important place, would give its name to the whole district, including Elephantine, just as Aramæan (= western Semite) might be taken to include Jews.

These colonists, then, were already settled in the south of Egypt at the time when their brethren were returning to Jerusalem, and they were developing independently as a religious community during all the constructive, or re-constructive, activity of Ezra and Nehemiah. What was the relation of this outlying branch to the main body of the Jewish people? To pre-exilic or post-exilic Judaism? How far was Jeremiah (chap. 44) justified in his denunciation of the Jews in Egypt? Did they remain true to the faith of their pre-exilic fathers, or were they influenced by the new gospel of Ezra? Some of these questions will perhaps never be conclusively answered. A few only of the facts can be stated here, and the reader may be left to form his own conclusions.

The religious and internal affairs of the community were directed by priests, as we see from No. 30 ¹ and frequently, but these priests (kahanin) are never called sons of Aaron. They acknowledged the God of the Jews, who is called Yahu,¹ the older (not an abbreviated) form of the name which we used to pronounce Jehovah, now generally written Yahweh. They had no scruple, as the later Jews had, about writing or uttering the name. But we also find mention of Ishumbethel and 'Anathbethel (No. 22 ¹²⁴⁻¹²⁵), apparently as gods associated with Yahu, though their relation to him is obscure. Elsewhere Herembethel and 'Anathyahu seem to be gods, and we find personal names compounded with Bethel and Herem, just as others are formed with -yah(u). Whatever may be the origin of the other names, it is probable that Bethel is the old Canaanite god (cf. Gen. 31 ¹³ in the Hebrew), whom the colonists had brought with them. Not only so, but in No. 14 ⁵ a Jewess of good position (therefore presumably not from ignorance), in a transaction with an Egyptian, takes an oath by the Egyptian goddess Sati. Yet it is evident throughout that they regarded Yahu as the supreme God, and themselves as specially devoted to the worship of Yahu.

This worship was conducted in a temple—not merely a synagogue or meeting-house, but (from the description in No. 30) a building of considerable dignity, containing an altar on which burnt-sacrifice was offered to Yahu. Now, according to Deuteronomy (12⁵⁻⁶, etc.) this ought to have been impossible. The law is very definite: sacrifice was only to be offered in the place which the Lord should choose, to put His name there. It is a clear restriction of the earlier practice recognised in Exodus and frequently illustrated in the Books of Samuel.¹ Was the colony, then, ignorant of Deuteronomy, or did it understand the command to apply only to Judæa, or was it frankly heretical? Not the last, apparently, for when their temple was destroyed they appealed to Jerusalem for help to rebuild it. Clearly they saw no reason why they should not offer sacrifices in their local temple, just as Samuel sacrificed at Gilgal (1 Sam. 11¹⁵) and others elsewhere. Both this practice and the worship of other (subsidiary) gods look like a continuation of earlier, pre-exilic customs, which became impossible in Judæa after the reforms of Ezra and Nehemiah. It was Deuteronomy which centralised the religious life of the people by making Jerusalem the place where alone men ought to worship. The usually accepted view now is ² that Deuteronomy was composed at some time not long before the eighteenth year of Josiah (621 B.C.), and that his abolition of “high places” and celebration of a great central national Passover were intended to emphasise the royal sanction of its enactments. It is not to be supposed, however, that the old practices could be changed all at once, especially as the exile followed soon after, thereby breaking all continuity. So that, on this view, Deuteronomy failed in its effect temporarily, until its provisions could be enforced by Ezra and Nehemiah. If this view be accepted, it becomes intelligible that Jews who went on foreign service, and were settled abroad before (perhaps long before) 590 B.C., should have been little influenced by the new legislation. Their descendants would soon lose all memory of Josiah's reforms, since there was nothing to preserve that memory after the fall of Jerusalem (588). They were as sheep without a shepherd in the spiritual desert of Egypt. Their national existence was ended, and it is not surprising or discreditable that they should have organised themselves as an independent religious community, and, since the temple at Jerusalem was destroyed, should have erected a temple of their own at Elephantine.¹ According to the statement in 30¹³, it was built before the Persian conquest of Egypt, and when Cambyses came into the country (in 525) it was already there, and was not injured by him.

Much more difficult to understand is the complete silence of these texts as to some of the fundamental facts of Jewish history and religion. One would suppose that the colonists had never heard of Moses or the Exodus, of Abraham or Jacob, of David or Solomon. There is not the faintest allusion to the Sabbath, nor to the Law.² Though there are priests, they are not called sons of Aaron, and there is no mention of Levites, nor of the tribe of Levi, nor indeed of any other tribe. Nor is there any reference to any of the festivals—except only the Passover and Unleavened Bread (on which see below). All this may be accidental: it may be merely that the texts are not of a kind to involve such allusions, and it is always dangerous to argue from silence. Still, we should expect a hint of some of these special characteristics of Judaism in so considerable an amount of literature. The fact that there is none suggests a doubt whether these isolated colonists in the fifth century B.C. really knew anything of their early history and institutions—and this doubt again suggests a question whether they had forgotten it all, or, supposing their mental attitude to be that of their ancestors in 600 B.C., whether the ordinary Jew of that date, in Judæa, was equally uninstructed.

² There might have been such an allusion in the letter to the High Priest Johanan (30¹⁸), which we do not possess. As No. 30 is addressed to Bigvai, a Persian, it may have been thought unnecessary to speak of the Law.

Even the mention of the Passover does not make the case better, for a special order seems to have been necessary for its celebration, and the regulations for the feast of Unleavened Bread, which is connected with it, have to be explained to the people. Such, at least, seems to be the meaning of No. 21. The papyrus is, unfortunately, very imperfect, but there is enough to show that it is an order from the Persian king (Darius II) relating to a festival of the Jews. The gaps can be filled with a certain amount of probability, since we know the approximate length of the lines, and some of the sentences can only be completed in one way. In any case it is an announcement by a certain Hananiah (a man of importance, as appears elsewhere) that an order has been sent by the king to Arsames (satrap of Egypt), and if our conjecture is right, it was an order to celebrate a feast. Then Hananiah proceeds to give instructions, first to reckon fourteen days (the next clause being lost), and then from the 15th to the 21st day of Nisan to abstain from leaven, etc. There can therefore be no doubt that it is the Passover which is meant to be kept on the 14th day of Nisan, and that the seven days following it are the days of Unleavened Bread. The gap in which the celebration of the Passover is presumably ordained is too short to allow of any instructions as to the manner of celebrating it, while the instructions for the feast of Unleavened Bread are relatively full. Thus it would seem that the colony knew about the Passover,¹ although they had not kept it regularly, but that the feast of Unleavened Bread was either unknown to them or had been entirely neglected.

The important point, about which there can be no question, is that the order was sent by the Persian king. It was a curt command, and the details were added by the messenger, who was a Jew. If, then, Darius could be induced, for whatever reasons, to issue a special edict concerning a single religious observance in an obscure colony of Jews, we need not question the authenticity of the letter of Artaxerxes in Ezra 7¹², dealing with the much more important matter of Ezra's mission. In neither case need we suppose that the details are due to the king himself. In the papyrus they certainly are not, and in Ezra 7¹² one can imagine the king, when once his consent had been obtained, saying, "Very well, then, give the man an order for what he wants." The order would then be drawn up by the Minister for Foreign Affairs, probably advised by Ezra himself, and sealed by the king's seal-bearer. Granted the initial good-will of the king, there is nothing improbable about the rest.

Prof. E. Meyer begins his book on these papyri with the remark: "Judaism is a creation of the Persian Empire."¹ This is perhaps an over-statement, but there can be no doubt that, humanly speaking, the reconstruction of Judaism (and therefore the modern development of it) was greatly helped and strengthened by the good-will of the Persian kings. There was first the original edict of Cyrus, then the respect shown by Cambyses for the temple at Elephantine (30¹⁴), then the help given by Artaxerxes, and lastly this order of Darius. The good-will is manifest: the reason of it is not so clear. It may have been due to a real religious sympathy between the worshippers of Auramazda and the people of the God of heaven, or it may have been part of an enlightened policy of toleration, or the Jews in Babylonia may have made themselves so useful and powerful as to be able to gain concessions by their influence, or, since we know from numerous cuneiform contracts of their great commercial activity, they may have become rich enough to be able to bribe the necessary officials. However we account for the fact, it is clear from the Books of Ezra and Nehemiah that their work could never have been successful under a Government which was either hostile or neutral.

¹ There is also a reference to it on an ostrakon (inscribed potsherd) of this date, not included in the present volume.

Such are some of the larger questions raised by the new texts. Many details may also be gathered from them incidentally as to the daily life of the colonists: as to the legal procedure (which is in the main Babylonian, not Egyptian), the commissariat and pay of the garrison, the Government offices and officials, the relations existing between Jews and other inhabitants, the right of the colonists to hold real property, the customs relating to marriage, divorce and inheritance, the contributions to the temple expenses, the situation of the, houses, the position of women, the attitude of the Egyptian priests, and other matters. The relative values of the money may be made out best from No. 15. It is always described as k'saph, "silver" (there is no mention of gold in this connexion), and it is reckoned by the "royal weight." The commonest denomination is the shekel. Ten shekels are a karash (or karsha, a Persian name), also called a "ten" ('asarta). The shekel itself is subdivided into quarters (R for rib'a), and each quarter into 10 hallurin (a Babylonian name), so that 40 hallurin make 1 shekel. The quality of the silver is sometimes described as "pure," but more often as "2 R to the 10," indicating an alloy of $\frac{1}{2}$ in every 10, i. e. 1 in 20, or 5 per cent. Rarely we find minæ and talents, but usually the transactions are not concerned with such large amounts. In the latest documents we have the Greek stater = 2 shekels.

The collection consists for the most part of business documents and letters or reports. There are, however, two texts of a literary character, namely, considerable fragments of the story of Ahiḳar, and parts of a translation of the Behistun inscription. The facts about the former may best be studied in Conybeare, Rendel Harris and Lewis, The Story of Ahiḳar (2nd ed., Cambridge, 1913), and in Charles's Apocrypha, ii, p. 715 (Oxford, 1913), by the same editors. The story was evidently very popular, for it exists in several versions, besides forming the basis of other stories. Recently it was recognised that Ahiḳar was the same as the Achiacharus in Tobit 14¹⁰, who was Tobit's nephew (ibid., 1²²). No early (i. e. pre-Christian) recension of the story was known, however, until the discovery of these papyri. Although the papyrus-text is not dated, there can be no doubt (judging from the appearance of the writing) that it belongs to the same period as the majority of the dated documents, namely, the latter part of the fifth century B.C., say about 420. Therefore, if the Book of Tobit is to be dated about 230 B.C.,¹ there is no difficulty about the allusions to Aḥikar. It is also probable that the author of Tobit read the story in this (or a similar) Aramaic form, for we cannot suppose that it was confined to Elephantine.

The story, however, was not originally composed in 420 B.C., nor was Aramaic the original language of it, nor was it Jewish in origin, for there is no trace of Judaism in the papyrus-text. There is good reason to believe that it was first composed in the Babylonian language, about 550 B.C., was afterwards translated into Persian, and thence into Aramaic. Thus, since Aramaic was an international language, it became accessible to all the East.

In the later versions, Syriac, Arabic, Armenian, which grew out of the original draft, the book is divided into four parts: (1) the introduction down to the adoption of Nadin; (2) the maxims by which he was educated; (3) the rest of the narrative, including Nadin's treachery, the restoration of Aḥikar and an episode in Egypt; (4) the maxims by which Nadin was punished. In the papyrus (of which only a part is preserved, and even that is much injured) the whole of the narrative seems to have preceded the whole of the maxims. The story is more simply and briefly told than in the later versions. It is continuous up to the point at which Nabusumiskun reports to the king that he has killed Aḥikar, then it breaks off, and we cannot say how much more of the story the papyrus originally contained. The maxims, no doubt, followed the end of the narrative, but they have very little in common with those of the later versions. Of special interest is their occasional resemblance to parts of Ben Sira (Ecclesiasticus) and the biblical Proverbs. This is not due to direct borrowing on either side. They are part of that common stock of popular "wisdom" so abundant in the East, which was collected, revised and enlarged over and over again by successive authors of "wisdom literature," sometimes anonymously, sometimes under a traditional name. Thus we have the Proverbs of "Solomon," including the "words of Agur" (Prov. 30¹), and the "words of King Lemuel" (31¹). They might equally well have included some of the words of Aḥiḳar. The story was composed for the purpose of conveying a moral lesson—the punishment due to ingratitude—(as Tobit 14¹⁰ shows), just as the Books of Esther, Ruth, Judith and Tobit each inculcate a particular lesson, and the proverbs seem only occasionally to have any connexion with it. The latter are translated here as far as possible, but the point of some of them is quite lost, and some are too much broken to give any sense. They are much more difficult than the narrative.

The other literary piece is part of a translation of the great inscription of Behistun, famous as having formed the basis of the decipherment of cuneiform writing. The inscription was engraved about 510 B.C. to commemorate, in three languages, the means by which Darius Hystaspes consolidated his power. At the end of it, in an obscure passage, the king alludes to "inscriptions in another manner" which he "sent into all lands." This is generally taken to mean that copies of the great inscription were disseminated in the provinces. A fragment of such a copy, on stone, in cuneiform Babylonian, was recently found at Babylon.¹

But for transmission abroad some more portable form was required, such as this papyrus. The version was no doubt made soon after 510 B.C., and is therefore the earliest specimen of a translation in any but cuneiform writing. This papyrus, however, cannot be the actual document issued by Darius Hystaspes. The writing is of about the same date as, e. g., the Ahikar fragments, say 430 B.C., and there are omissions in it which show clearly that it was copied from a text which had become worn out and partly illegible. Although it is so much broken that hardly a line is complete, there is enough to show that it is as a rule a close translation, following the Babylonian original (not the Persian), so that the gaps can usually be filled by merely translating the Babylonian text into Aramaic. In some places, however, the Aramaic must have diverged from the Babylonian. There are also among the smaller fragments some which evidently belonged to a duplicate copy or copies. Thus it seems that the official translation of the great inscription, which probably reached Elephantine a few years before 500 B.C., became worn out in course of time, and that these Jews had sufficient interest in it as history to make at least two copies of it, omitting what they could not read. If only Darius had thought good to engrave this Aramaic version, with the others, on the rock at Behistun, how much labour and time would have been saved in the decipherment of cuneiform! He might very well have done so (see above, p. x), but his advisors probably regarded Aramaic as the writing suitable for pen and ink, and not to be used for monumental purposes.

The original texts of the inscription may best be studied in King and Thompson, The Sculptures and Inscriptions of Darius the Great (London, 1907).

In general, the value of these records for students of early Christianity is parallel to that of the apocryphal books. They mark a stage in religious development. We have come gradually to recognise that the primitive Church had its roots in the Judaism of the first centuries B.C. and A.D. The character of Judaism at that date has been well illustrated by Box from Rabbinical sources and by Charles from the study of apocryphal literature. But it is also evident that religious development, whether you ascribe it to revelation or to the natural growth of the human mind, is a gradual process. The religion of Judæa in the time of Christ was not the same as that of the book of Judges. A thousand years had fashioned it in a thousand ways, and anything which throws light on the process is as instructive as it is interesting. Much has been done by the careful analysis of the Old Testament text, but hitherto the external evidence has been very slight. For this reason the present texts are of first-rate importance. At the present time the daily life of the practising Jew is one continuous religious exercise : there is a dîn, a religious rule, for every act. In the business documents of this collection, on the contrary, we see a people whose daily life appears to be wholly uninfluenced by religious considerations, and who seem to be quite unconscious of any religious past. In the Aḥiḳar story we have a sample of the literature they read. It may have been, and almost certainly was, of entirely foreign origin. There is nothing Jewish about it, and the proverbs are as different as can be from the high standard of collections like the Pirḳe Aboth. Yet such documents as No. 30 show that they held to one essential fact—the worship of Yahu—regarding the interruption of it as a national calamity. They may have been less spiritually minded than the main body of their contemporaries in Judæa, but it seems likely that they had remained at much the same level as their forefathers of the sixth century B.C. There could have been no natural religious development among a people such as these colonists appear to be. Nothing short of an earthquake could make the dry bones live. It was in the shock of Ezra's reforms that modern Judaism was born, and the system of morality in which Christianity was afterwards planted. As the rabbis said, "the Law was forgotten, and Ezra restored it."

One other point. The existence of this colony, unsuspected fifteen years ago, shows that the Diaspora, or Dispersion of the Jews (1 Peter 1¹), had already begun several centuries before the Christian era. Besides the colony at Elephantine, there was a settlement at Abydos, and no doubt others elsewhere. The use of Aramaic, which was common all over the East, came easily to the Jews abroad, and eventually became their natural language. (Though there are Hebraisms in these documents, there is not a single text composed in Hebrew.) Probably intercourse between the colonists and the mother-country helped to establish Aramaic in Judæa, as we find it in the time of Christ. But the important thing is that these outlying settlements, with their common language and common belief in a revived Judaism, were there as a field prepared for the scattered seed of Christianity. The records of this colony show us an earlier type of the communities so often mentioned in the Acts of the Apostles (2^{5, 9-11}). They are therefore not merely of antiquarian interest. They reveal the rock whence we are hewn, and appeal to our human sympathy with the difficulties of a people seeking God in their darkness, if haply they might feel after Him and find Him, though He is not far from each one of us.

In the following translations the numerous gaps have been filled up as far as possible, in order to show the general sense. Otherwise several of the texts would at first sight appear meaningless. These restorations have been made with great care and after much thought, but the reader must be careful to distinguish them from the true text, and must not regard them as having any authority in themselves. Many of them are indeed certain, for reasons to be given in the larger edition; others rest only on my personal view as to the connexion of thought.

Restorations are printed in italics.

Where single letters are restored with certainty, they are often not indicated, to avoid too much complication.

Words inserted for clearness, owing to difference of idiom between the two languages, are put in parentheses (thus).

Proper names found in the Old Testament have been spelt as in the Revised Version, though this causes some inconsistencies.

Where the vocalisation of a name is unknown its consonants only are printed, in capitals.

When unknown words have to be reproduced sometimes to show the form of a sentence, the consonants are printed in small capitals.

The dates of the kings mentioned are added here for convenient reference :

Cambyses, 530-522. *

Darius I, 522-486.

Xerxes, 486-465.

Artaxerxes I, 465-424.

Darius II, 424-404.

Artaxerxes II, 404-358.

Amyrtæus, the Egyptian, about 405-399.

ARAMAIC PAPYRI

No. 1.

Agreement, dated 494 B.C. (Sachau, p. 113.)

- 1 On the 2nd day of the month Epiphi of the 27th year of King Darius, said Sallua daughter of
- 2 Koniah and Yethoma her sister to Yeha'or daughter of Shelomim, We have given to you half
- 3 the share which was granted to us by the king's judges and Ravaka the commander, in exchange for half the share which
- 4 accrued to you with Ne'ehebeth. Hereafter, on a future day, we shall not be able to sue you in the matter of this your share,
- 5 and say, We did not give it to you; nor shall a brother or sister (of ours), son or daughter, relative
- 6 or alien be able to sue you; and whoever shall sue you in the matter of this your share which we have given you, shall pay to you
- 7 the sum of 5 karash and the share remain yours.

Grant of Building Rights. 471 B.C. (Sayce and Cowley, A.)

- 1 On the 18th of Elul, that is the 28th day of Paḥons,
 year 15 of King Xerxes, said 2 Koniah b. Zadok, an Aramæan of Syene, of the detachment of Warizath, to Mahseiah b. Yedoniah, an Aramæan of Syene,

- 3 of the detachment of Warizath, saying : I came to you and you have given to me the gateway of your house to build
- 4 1 portico (?) there. This portico is yours. It adjoins my house at its upper corner.
- 5 This portico shall adjoin the side of my house from the ground upwards, from the corner of my house at the upper end to the house of Zechariah.
- 6 To-morrow or on any later day I have no power to restrain you from building above (or upon) this portico of yours.
- 7 If I restrain you, I will pay you the sum of 5 karash, royal weight, pure silver, and the portico is yours
- 8 assuredly. If Kōniah dies to-morrow or on a later day no son or daughter, brother or sister,
- 9 relative or stranger, soldier or citizen, shall have power to restrain Maḥseh or his son from building above
- 10 this portico of his. Whoever restrains one of them shall pay him the sum aforesaid, and the portico
- 11 is yours assuredly, and you have the right to build above it upwards, and I Kōniah have no power
- 12 to speak to Maḥseh saying : This gateway is not yours, and you shall not go out (by it) into the street which
- 13 is between us and the house of Peft'onith, the boatman. If I restrain you, I will pay you the sum aforesaid.
- 14 And you have the right to open this gate and go out into the street which is between us.
- 15 Pelatiah b. Ahio wrote this document at the dictation of Kōniah. Witnesses thereto :
- 16 Witness Maḥseh b. Isaiah. Witness Satibarzanes b. Mithrili.
17. Witness Shemaiah b. Hosea. Witness Phrathaphernes b. Artaphernes.

- 19 Witness Bentirash b. Raḥamrea' (?). Witness Shalum b. Hoshaiah.
- 20 (Endorsement.) Deed (relating to) the portico which he built, which Koniah wrote for Maḥseh.

1. 4. "portico": the meaning is uncertain. A covered way? The upper corner is on the south. So perhaps in l. 11?

1. 16. "Mithrili," or perhaps Atharili.

of it, and the house of Jezaniah b. Uriah,
- 10 Jew, of the detachment of Warizath, at the lower end of it, and the house of Espemet b. Peft'onith,
- 11 boatman of the cataract, at the upper end of it.
You have sworn to me by Yahu, and have satisfied
- 12 my mind about this land. I shall have no power to institute suit or process against you, I and my son and my daughter,
- 12a brother and sister of mine, relative and stranger,
- 13 concerning this land, (against) you and your son and your daughter, brother and sister of yours, relative and stranger.
- 14 Whoever sues you in my name concerning this land, shall pay you the sum of 20 (twenty) karash royal standard,

A Case of Burglary. 461 B.C. (Sachau, p. 103.)

- 1 On the 18th of Paophi, in the 4th year of Artaxerxes the king, in Yeb
- 2 the fortress, said Malchiah b. Joshibiah, Aramæan, holding property in Yeb
- 3 the fortress, of the detachment of Nabukudurri, to Phrataphernes b. Artaphernes of the detachment
- 4 of Nabukudurri, saying: You declared to me (or concerning me) in Nepha that you entered my house
- 5 by force, and struck my wife, and removed goods from my house by force,
- 6 and took them for yourself. I have made a petition and the appeal to the gods
- 7 has been laid upon me by the court, on me Malchiah, that I should challenge you by Herembethel
- 8 the god, before 4 judges (?), thus: "I did not enter your house by force,
- 9 and did not strike your wife, and did not take goods from your house by force."
- 10 And if I challenge you before these judges (?) I am entitled also to challenge . . . (the rest is lost).

Conveyance. 459 B.C. (Sayce and Cowley, D.)

- 1 On the 21st of Chisleu, that is the 1st day of Mesore, the 6th year of Artaxerxes, the king, said Mahseiah
- 2 b. Yedoniah, a Jew holding property in Yeb the fortress, of the detachment of Haumadata, to Mibṭaḥiah, spinster (?),

- 3 his daughter, as follows : I give to you for my life-time and after my death a house and land of mine.
- 4 Its measurement is : its length from the lower to the upper end 13 cubits and 1 handbreadth; width from East
- 5 to West 11 cubits by the measuring-rod ; its boundaries, at the upper end of it the house of Dargman b. Harshin
- 6 adjoins it ; at the lower end of it the house of Koniah b. Zadok ; East of it the house of Yezan b.
- 7 Uriah, your husband, and the house of Zechariah b. Nathan ; West of it the house of Espemet b. Peft'onith
- 8 boatman of the cataract. This house and land I give to you for my life-time and after my death ;
- 9 you have full rights over it from this day for ever, and your children after you. To whom
- 10 you wish you may give it. There is no other son or daughter of mine, brother or sister, or other
- 11 woman or man who has rights over this land, except you and your children for ever. Whoever
- 12 shall institute against you suit or process, against you or son or daughter of yours or anyone belonging to you on account of this land
- 13 which I give to you, and shall appeal against you to governour or judge, shall pay to you or to your children
- 14 the sum of 10 (that is, ten) kerashin, royal weight, at the rate of 2 R to the ten, and no suit or process (shall lie),
- 15 and the house is your house assuredly and your children's after you ; and they shall have no power to produce against you
- 16 any deed new or old in my name concerning this land to give it to anyone else. Any deed

- 17 which they produce against you will be forged. I shall not have written it and it shall not be accepted by the court
- 18 while this deed is in your hand. And further, I, Mahseiah will not to-morrow or on any other day take it away
- 19 from you to give it to others. This land is yours. Build (on it) or give it to whom you will.
- 20 If to-morrow or on any other day I institute against you suit or process, and say I did not give it to you,
- 21 I will pay you the sum of 10 kerashin, royal weight, at the rate of 2 R to the ten, and no suit
- 22 or process (shall lie), but the house is your house assuredly, and (if) I go into court I shall not win my case while this deed is in your hand.
- 23 There is also a deed of renunciation which Dargman b. Harshin the Khorazmian wrote for me concerning
- 24 this land, when he laid claim to it before the judges and I took an oath to him and swore to him
- 25 that it was mine, and he wrote and gave me a deed of renunciation. This deed I give to you.

Deed relating to the Reversion of the Property in
 No. 8. 459 B.C. (Sayce and Cowley, C.)

- 1 On the 21st of Chisleu, that is the 1st of Mesore, the 6th year of Artaxerxes the king, said Mahseiah
 2 b. Yedoniah Jew, of Yeb, of the detachment of Haumadata, to Jezaniah b. Uriah, of the same detachment
 3 as follows: There is the land of 1 house belonging to me, west of your house, which I have given to Mibṭaḥiah
 4 my daughter, your wife, and I have written for her a deed concerning it. The measurement of this house is 13 cubits and a hand-breadth 5 by 11, by the measuring-rod. Now I, Mahseiah, say to you, lay out this land and rear cattle on it (?), 6 and dwell on it with your wife, but you have no power to sell this house, or to give it 7 as a present to others; but your children by Mibṭaḥiah my daughter have power over it 8 after you. If to-morrow or another day you lay out this land and then my daughter divorces you 9 and goes away from you, she has no power to take it or give it to others, but your children by

- 10 Mibṭaḥiah have power over it in return for the work which you have done. If you put her away 11 from you, half the house shall be hers to take, and as to the other half you have power over it in return for 12 the development which you have made in this house.
And again as to that half, your children by Mibṭaḥiah
13 have power over it after you. If to-morrow or another day I should institute suit or process against you 14 and say I did not give you this land to develop, and did not draw up this deed for you, I 15 will pay you the sum of 10 kerashin by royal weight, at the rate of 2 R to the ten, and no suit or process (shall lie).
16 'Atharshuri b. Nabu-zira-ibni wrote this deed in Syene the fortress at the dictation of Mahseiah.
Witnesses

- 15 Gemariah b. Ahio wrote the deed before the witnesses who(se names) are upon this deed.

The beginning is lost, with the date.

1 2. "the weight of Ptaḥ" is the native Egyptian standard, not the royal weight, as usually. This indicates a time of revolt against the Persians, i. e. either about 455 or 400. The names require the earlier date, as some of them occur in other deeds about that time.

1. 8. "doubled," or perhaps "counted as one sum," capital and interest together.

1. 13. Yeha-dari or Yah-hadari, an unusual name.

No. 12.

Conveyance of a House. 447 B.C.

(Sayce and Cowley, E.)

- 1 On the 3rd of Chisleu, that is the 10th day of the month Mesore, year 19 of Artaxerxes the king, said Mahseiah b.
- 2 Yedoniah, Aramæan of Syene, of the detachment of Warizath, to Miphtaḥiah his daughter as follows :
I give you the house
- 3 which Meshullam b. Zaccur b. Atar, Aramæan of Syene, gave me for its price, and wrote a document for me about it,
- 4 and I give it to Miphtaḥiah my daughter in return for the goods which she gave me when I was inspector (?) in the fortress. I borrowed (?)

- 5 them and did not find money and goods to pay you.
Consequently I give you this house
- 6 in return for those your goods of the value of 5
kerashin, and I give you the original document which
- 7 the said Meshullam wrote for me about it. This house I give to you and I resign all claim to it.
It belongs to you and to your children
- 8 after you and to whomsoever you please you may give it. I have no power, I or my children or my descendants or any
- 9 other man, to bring against you suit or process in the matter of this house which I give you, and have written the document for you
- 10 about it. Whoever raises against you suit or process, (whether it be) I or a brother or sister, relative or stranger, soldier or citizen,
- 11 shall pay you the sum of 10 kerashin, and the house is assuredly yours. Moreover no other man shall produce against you a document
- 12 new or old, other than this document which I have written and given to you: whoever pro- duces against you such document, I have not written it.
- 13 Moreover note, these are the boundaries of this house: At the upper end of it is the house of Yeosh b. Penuliah, at the lower end of it is
- 14 the temple of the God Yahu, at the east of it is the house of Gadol b. Oshea' and the street between them,
- 15 on the west of it is the land of b. Palto, priest of the gods Khnum and Sati(?). This house
- 16 I give you and resign all claim to it. It is yours for ever. To whomsoever you wish, give it.

- 17 Nathan b. Ananiah wrote this document at the direction of Mahseiah and the witnesses hereto. Mahseiah signed for 18 himself (?).
 Mithrasari (?) b. Mithrasari (?), and Satibarzanes b. Atharili, silversmith.
 19 Witness, Barbari b. Dargi, silversmith of the place (?).
Witness, b. Shemaiah.
 20 Zaccur b. Shallum.

 21 Document concerning Mahseiah b. Yedoniah and Miphṭaḥiah his daughter.

1. 4. "inspector" is uncertain. "I borrowed": others take this as a name.

1. 14. This is the first mention of the temple. See further No. 30.

1. 18. "for himself," etc.: the writing is hasty and not very legible. Atharili, or perhaps Mithrili: cf. No. 5¹⁶.

1. 19. "of the place" is strange. It may be a name "of Athra."

14 Deed of quittance which Pi wrote for Miḇṭaḥiah.

Probably a settlement on the dissolution of Miḇṭaḥiah's marriage with Pi, who would have been her second husband. This seems to be indicated by his giving up the marriage-deed in l. 4.

l. 5. She swore by the Egyptian goddess, because Pi was an Egyptian. None of the witnesses have Jewish names. Perhaps she was not recognised by the community as long as she was married to an Egyptian.

l. 14. "quittance" may be a term for divorce.

Marriage Contract. About 441 B.C.

(Sayce and Cowley, G.)

- 1 On the 25th (?) of Tishri that is the 6th day of the month Epiphi year . . . of Artaxerxes the king,

- 2 said Ashor b. Zəho, builder to the king, to Mahseiah, Aramæan of Syene, of the detachment of
- 3 Warizath, as follows: I came to your house that you might give me your daughter Miphtaḥiah in marriage.
- 4 She is my wife and I her husband from this day for ever. I have given you as the price
- 5 of your daughter Miphtaḥiah the sum of 5 shekels, royal weight. It has been received by you and your heart is content
- 6 therewith. You have delivered to your daughter Miphtaḥiah into her hand for the cost of furniture 1 karash 2 shekels royal
- 7 weight, of the standard of 2 R to 10. You have delivered to her into her hand 1 woollen robe, new, striped,
- 8 dyed on both sides, (whose) length was 8 cubits by 5, worth the sum of 2 kerashin 8 shekels,
- 9 royal weight; 1 closely-woven (shawl) new, (whose) length was 8 cubits by 5, worth
- 10 the sum of 8 shekels royal weight; another woollen robe, finely woven, (whose) length was
- 11 6 cubits by 4, worth the sum of 7 shekels; 1 mirror of bronze, worth
- 12 the sum of 1 shekel 2 R; 1 tray of bronze, worth the sum of 1 shekel 2 R; 2 cups of bronze,
- 13 worth the sum of 2 shekels; 1 bowl of bronze, worth the sum of 2 R; total money
- 14 and value of goods being the sum of 6 kerashin 5 shekels 20 ḥallurin, of the standard of 2 R to 10, royal weight.
- 15 I have received, and my heart is content therewith, 1 couch of reeds with 4 supports (?)
- 16 of stone; 1 PK of SLK; 2 ladles, holding (?) 8 Ḥ; 1 MŠ'N knife (?); 1 cosmetic box of ivory new.

- 17 To-morrow or another day (if) Ašor should die and there is no child male or female 18 belonging to him by Miphtaḥiah his wife, Miphtaḥiah has a right to the house 19 of Ašor, his goods and his chattels and all that he has on the face of the earth, 20 all of it. To-morrow or (another) day (if) Miphtaḥiah should die and there is no child male or female 21 belonging to her by Ašor her husband, Ašor shall inherit her goods
22 and her chattels. To-morrow or another day (if)
Miphtaḥiah should stand up in the congregation 23 and say, I divorce Ašor my husband, the price of divorce (shall be) on her head; she shall return to 24 the scales and weigh out to Ašor the sum of 7
shekels 2 R and all that she has taken 25 into her hand she shall give up, both shred (?) and thread, and she shall go away whither she will, without 25 suit or process. To-morrow or another day (if)
Ašor should stand up in the congregation
27 and say, I divorce my wife Miphtaḥiah, her price shall be forfeited, but all that she received 28 into her hand, she shall give up, both shred (?)
and thread, on one day at one time, and she shall go 29 away whither she will, without suit or process. But if he should rise up against Miphtaḥiah 30 to drive her out from his, Ašor's, house and his goods and chattels, he shall give her 31 the sum of 20 kerashin, and the provisions of this deed shall be annulled, as far as she is concerned.
And I shall have no right to say 32 I have another wife besides Miphtaḥiah and other children than the children whom

- 33 Miphtaḥiah shall bear to me. If I say I have children and wife other than
- 34 Miphtaḥiah and her children, I will pay to Miphtaḥiah the sum of 20 kerashin, royal weight,
- 35 and I shall have no right to take away my goods and chattels from Miphtaḥiah; and if I remove them
- 36 from her [erasure] I will pay to Miphtaḥiah the sum of 20 kerashin, royal weight.

- 38 Penuliah b. Jezaniah : . . . iah b. Uriah : Menahem b. Zaccur :
- 39 Witness, Re'ibel (?) b. . . .

The number of the year is lost, but since the two sons by this marriage were old enough to be parties to a case in 421, they must have been born somewhere about 440 B.C., and the date of the contract must be as given above.

This was Mibtaḥiah's third marriage, if we are right about the meaning of No. 14.

ll. 6, 7. "You have delivered" is probably the meaning, but the first person ("I have") would have the same form.

ll. 15, 16. The meaning of some of the words in this list is unknown.

l. 16. "8 H," probably a measure here, not ḥallurin.

l. 23. "on her head," etc.: the translation is uncertain, though the general meaning is clear.

Renunciation of Claim. 416 B.C.

(Sayce and Cowley, J.)

- 1 On the 3rd of Chisleu, year 8, that is the 12th day of Thoth, year 9 of Darius the king, at that date
in Yeb
- 2 the fortress said Yedoniah b. Hoshaiiah b. Uriah, Aramæan of Yeb the fortress, before Widrang
commander of the garrison

- 3 of Syene, to Yedoniah b. Nathan and Mahseiah b. Nathan, his brother, their mother being Mibṭaḥiah daughter of Mahseiah b. Yedoniah, before
- 4 Widrang commander of the garrison of Syene, as follows: I withdraw (my claim) against you on the house of Jezaniah b. Uriah. These are its boundaries:
- 5 at the upper end, the house of Hosea b. Uriah adjoins it; at the lower end of it, the house of Hazul b. Zechariah adjoins it;
- 6 at the lower end and above, there are open windows; on the east of it, is the temple of the God Yahu, and the highway
- 7 of the king between them; on the west of it, the house of Mibṭaḥiah daughter of Mahseiah, which Mahseiah her father gave her,
- 8 adjoins it. This house, whose boundaries are described above, is yours, Yedoniah and Mahseiah both
- 9 sons of Nathan, for ever, and your children's after you. To whom you will, you may give it. I shall have no power, I Yedoniah, or my sons
- 10 or female or male dependant of mine, I shall have no power to set in motion suit or process against you, nor shall we have power to sue son or daughter of yours,
- 11 brother or sister, female or male dependant of yours, or any man to whom you may sell this house, or to whom you may give it as a gift,
- 12 on behalf of me, Yedoniah, or on behalf of my sons or dependants female or male. If I, Yedoniah, sue you, or you are sued by
- 13 a son of mine or daughter or female or male dependant, on my behalf or on behalf of my sons, (or anyone) except a son or daughter of Jezaniah b. Uriah,

14 or (if) they sue son or daughter, or female or male dependant of yours, or a man to whom you may sell or to whom you may give as a gift

15 this house, or whoever shall bring a claim against you, shall pay you a fine of the sum of ten kerashin, that is 10 kerashin at the rate of

16 2 R to 1 karash by royal weight, and the house is assured to you for ever and to your sons after you, failing

Order to Repair a Boat. 412 B.C. (Sachau, p. 44.)

- 1 From Arsames to Wahiprimahi: Now the boat of Pesmesnith and his colleagues the boatmen of the fortifications is worn out as reported
- 2 to us by Mithradates the boatman as follows: Thus says Pesmesnith the boatmen of
- 3 the fortifications say thus: The boat of which we have charge, it is time to do its repairs. Thereupon I sent word as follows: Let the specification
- 4 be drawn up accurately and sent to the accountants of the treasury. They with the commanders Shemsillek and his colleagues are to inspect this boat
- 5 and make a report on it (?), and let the arsenic (?) which is required (?) by the specification, paint (?) and the rest be sent, and let the accountants give all the materials
- 6 and let its repairs be done immediately, and the rest about which word was sent to them from me. Thereupon they sent and thus said their messengers: On
- 7 the beach which is in front of the fortress, between its fortifications Mithradates the boatman showed us the boat. We report that by Pesmesnith and
- 8 both boatmen of the fortifications, it is described accurately, and we have reported to Shemsillek and his colleagues the commanders, (and) Shemu b.
- 9 Kanufi, head of the carpenters, of SPYT, and they said thus: It is time to make its repairs. This is the specification (of) what is required (?) to do its repairs:

E

- 10 Cedar and AR wood, new, (each) plank 10 cubits 80 cubits by 3 hand-breadths, among them ribs (?) of 12 cubits;
- 11 boards (?) 15, each of 20 cubits; a S'BL, 70 cubits;
 HNN for the hold (?) 3; a sail (?) for the mast (?), 1;
- 12 planks for the HL of 60 cubits; a PHTMUNI for the P'R'R, 1 of 2 cubits; APSI under the HL, 5; nails of bronze and iron,
- 13 200; planks of cedar, seasoned (?), strong, TMIS, 20
 cubits; the equivalent of all of it, both sound (?)
 and broken, he is to bring to the treasury;
 sails (?) of
- 14 cotton, thick, 180 kerashin; awnings (?), 250 kera-
 shin; planks of cedar, new; 2 HNN, each 5 cubits
- 15 3 hands by 3 hands; for the HL, nails of bronze, 150, each 3 hands, 275,
- 16 each 10 finger-breadths; total nails, 425; plates of bronze, 20 cubits; nails for them, 200;
- 17 planks of cedar, seasoned (?), Egyptian (?) government, 1 talent 10 minæ in all; add (?) sulphur, 10 kerashin, and arsenic for the painting (?), 100
 kerashin;
- 18 and they shall add to the planks which are (?)
 supplied, to the board in length each 3 hands clear (?), and to the breadth and thickness 2 fingers; and to
- 19 the SIM, in length each 3 hands clear (?), and to the breadth 2 fingers; and to the planed boards (?)
 and HNN in length each 1 hand; and to
- 20 the S'BL, the wood for the HL, the rows of TMIS, in length each 3 hands clear (?), and to the breadth 1 finger. The sails (?) of cotton, the awning (?),
- 21 the arsenic, the sulphur, are to be supplied by Persian weight. Let word be sent that these materials are to be delivered to Shemu b. Kanufi, head of

- 22 the carpenters, of SPYT, for the purpose of the repair of this boat, and let him do (it) at once, according to the order issued. Now Arsames says as follows : You are to act
- 23 in accordance with this which the accountants say, according to the order issued. 'Anani, secretary, drafted the order. Nabu'aḳab wrote (it).

The translation is very difficult owing to the many technical terms of unknown meaning.

1. 1. Arsames was the satrap of Egypt.
1. 9. "SPYTKN" : an adjective formed from a place-name.
- Cf. 1. 22.
1. 17. "Egyptian government" is very doubtful.

Petition to Arsames (?). About 410 B.C.

(Sachau, p. 26.)

- 1 . . . we should be injured (?). When (?) detachments of the Egyptians rebelled, we did not leave our posts,
- 2 and nothing disloyal was found in us. In the 14th year of King Darius, when our lord Arsames
- 3 went away to the king, this is the crime which the priests of the god Khnub committed in the fortress of Yeb
- 4 in concert with Waidrang who was governour here, after giving him money and valuables : there is a part

- 5 of the king's stores which is in the fortress of Yeb, (this) they wrecked, and they built a wall in the midst of the fortress of Yeb
- 6 Now this wall is built in the midst of the fortress.
 There is a well which is built 7 within the fortress, and it never lacks water to supply the garrison, so that (?) if it is supervised (?) they would be 8 (able to get) water to drink in this well. Those priests of Khnub stopped up this well. If enquiry 9 be made of the magistrates, officers (and) police who are set over the province of TŠTRS 10 it will be made known to your lordship in accordance with what we say. Moreover we are innocent 11 of this damage to the stores which were in the fortress of Yeb
 12 thus we are free from blame, and anything 13 harmful of this kind has not been found in us, but the priests will not allow 14 us to bring meal-offering and incense
 15 and sacrifice to offer there to Yahu the God of heaven
 16
 17 but they made there a fire (?)
 18 and the rest of the fittings they took for themselves, all of it.
 19 Now if it please your lordship, let the injury be very much remembered
 20 which was done to us, us of the Jewish garrison.
 21 If it please your lordship let an order be given according to 22 what we state. If it please your lordship, let word be sent

- 23 that they shall not injure anything which is ours
 24 and to build the altar (?) of ours which they destroyed.

Very imperfect, especially at the end, on the reverse.

The petition is evidently an earlier appeal relating to the events described in No. 30.

1. 7. "supervised": the word occurs in 13⁴, but its meaning is very doubtful.

Assignment of Slaves. 410 B.C.

(Sayce and Cowley, K.)

- 1 On the 24th of Shebat, year 13, that is the 9th day of Athyr, year 14 of Darius the king in the fortress of Yeb,
- 2 said Mahseiah b. Nathan (and) Yedoniah b. Nathan, in all 2, Aramæans of Syene, of the detachment of Warizath, as follows: We have agreed
- 3 together and have divided between us the slaves of Mibṭahiah our mother, and note, this is the share which comes to you as a share—you, Yedoniah—,
- 4 Peṭosiri by name, whose mother is Tebo, a slave. A yod is marked on his arm at the right of a marking in the Aramaic language, thus,
- 5 "Mibṭahiah's." Note also, this is the share which comes to me as a share—me, Mahseiah—, Belo by name, whose mother is Tebo, a slave. A yod
- 6 is marked on his arm at the right of a marking in the Aramaic language thus, "Mibṭahiah's." You, Yedoniah, are master of Peṭosiri,
- 7 this slave, who has come to you as a share, from this day for ever, and your children after you, and to whom you will you may give (him). I shall have no power,

- 8 I Mahseiah, son or daughter of mine, brother or sister of mine, or any dependant of mine, to move the court against you or against your children in the matter of Peṭosiri
- 9 by name, the slave who has come to you as a share. If we move the court against you in the matter, we Mahseiah or my children, or (if) we sue son
- 10 or daughter of yours or dependant of yours in the matter of Peṭosiri this slave who has come to you as a share, then we will pay to you a fine of standard
- 11 money ten kerashin, royal weight, and we renounce all claim against you and your children as regards this Peṭosiri
- 12 who has come to you as a share. He belongs to you and your children after you, and to whom you will you may give (him) without question. Also as to Tebo
- 13 by name, the mother of these lads, and Lilu her daughter, whom we do not yet divide between us, when it is time we will divide them
- 14 between us, and we will each take possession of his share, and we will write a deed of our partition between us, and (there shall be) no dispute. Nabutukulti b. Nabu-zira-ibni wrote
- 15 this deed in the fortress of Yeb at the direction of Mahseiah and Yedoniah his brother. Witnesses thereto : Menahem b. Gadol;
- 16 Witness Hanan b. Haggai; Witness Nathan b. Yeho'or; Witness Shallum b. Nathan.

- 1 To our lord Bigvai, governour of Judæa, your servants Yedoniah and his colleagues, the priests who are in Yeb the fortress. The health
- 2 of your lordship may the God of Heaven seek after exceedingly at all times, and give you favour before Darius the king

- 3 and the princes of the palace more than now a thousand times, and may he grant you long life, and may you be happy and prosperous at all times.
- 4 Now your servant Yedoniah and his colleagues depose as follows: In the month of Tammuz in the 14th year of Darius the king, when Arsames
- 5 departed and went to the king, the priests of the god Khnub, who is in the fortress of Yeb, (were) in league with Waidrang who was governour here,
- 6 saying: The temple of Yahu the God, which is in the fortress of Yeb let them remove from there. Then that Waidrang,
- 7 the reprobate, sent a letter to his son Nephayan who was commander of the garrison in the fortress of Syene saying: The temple which is in Yeb
- 8 the fortress let them destroy. Then Nephayan led out the Egyptians with the other forces. They came to the fortress of Yeb with their weapons,
- 9 they entered that temple, they destroyed it to the ground, and the pillars of stone which were there they broke. Also it happened, 5 gate-ways
- 10 of stone, built with hewn blocks of stone, which were in that temple, they destroyed, and their doors they set up (?), and the hinges
- 11 of those doors were bronze, and the roof of cedar wood, all of it, with the rest of the furniture and other things which were there,
- 12 all of it they burnt with fire, and the basons of gold and silver and everything that was in that temple, all of it, they took
- 13 and made their own. Already in the days of the kings of Egypt our fathers had built that temple in the fortress of Yeb, and when Cambyses came into Egypt

- 14 he found that temple built, and the temples of the gods of Egypt all of them they overthrew, but no one did any harm to that temple.
- 15 When this was done, we with our wives and our children put on sack-cloth and fasted and prayed to Yahu the Lord of Heaven,
- 16 who let us see (our desire) upon that Waidrang, the abominable. They tore off the anklets from his legs, and all the riches he had gained were destroyed, and all the men
- 17 who had sought to do evil to that temple, all of them, were killed and we saw (our desire) upon them. Also before this, at the time when this evil
- 18 was done to us, we sent a letter to your lordship and to Johanan the high priest and his colleagues the priests who are in Jerusalem, and to Ostanès the brother
- 19 of 'Anani, and the nobles of the Jews. They have not sent any letter to us. Also since the month of Tammuz in the 14th year of Darius the king
- 20 till this day we wear sack-cloth and fast. Our wives are made widow-like, we do not anoint ourselves with oil
- 21 and we drink no wine. Also from that (time) till (the present) day in the 17th year of Darius the king, neither meal-offering, incense, nor sacrifice
- 22 do they offer in that temple. Now your servants Yedoniah and his colleagues and the Jews, all of them inhabitants of Yeb, say as follows :
- 23 If it seem good to your lordship, take thought for that temple to build it, since they do not allow us to build it. Look upon your

- 24 well-wishers and friends who are here in Egypt,
 (and) let a letter be sent from you to them concerning the temple of the God Yahu
- 25 to build it in the fortress of Yeb as it was built before, and they shall offer the meal-offering and incense and sacrifice
- 26 on the altar of the God Yahu on your behalf, and we will pray for you at all times, we, our wives, our children, and the Jews,
- 27 all who are here, if they do so that this temple be re-built, and it shall be a merit to you before Yahu the God of
- 28 Heaven more than a man who offers to him sacrifice and burnt-offerings worth as much as the sum of a thousand talents. As to gold, about this
- 29 we have sent (and) given instructions. Also the whole matter we have set forth in a letter in our name to Delaiah and Shelemiah the sons of Sanballat governour of Samaria.
- 30 Also of all this which was done to us Arsames knew nothing. On the 20th of Marḥeshwan the 17th year of Darius the king.

This must be a copy or draft of the letter actually sent.

l. 1. Bigvai = Bagoas in Josephus, Ant. 10⁷, where Ioannes (= Johanan in l. 18) is also mentioned as High-Priest.

l. 2. "seek after": the regular formula in human greetings.

l. 7. "reprobate" does not seem very suitable, but no better meaning has been suggested. The word occurs several times.

l. 10. "set up" is difficult. Possibly "lifted them off their hinges" (?) or "stood them against the wall" to burn them.

l. 13. "when Cambyzes came into Egypt" in 525 B.C.

l. 16. "the abominable," lit. "dog-like." It may be "the dogs tore off," after he was killed. But the sentence is obscure.

l. 19. "They have not sent," because they disapproved of the temple?

l. 24. "to them," i. e. to the Egyptians.

l. 26. "on your behalf," though he was a non-Jewish official.

l. 28. "As to gold," as bakhshish.

l. 30. "Arsames knew nothing," and so was not to blame. He was away at the time. Cf. ll. 4, 5.

A Letter. Probably about 407 B.C.

(Sachau, p. 63.)

- 1, 2 khnum, now these are the names of the women who were found 3 at the gate in Thebes (?) and were taken prisoners :
 Rami, wife of Hodar, Asirshuth, wife of Hosea,
 Pelul, wife of Yislah, Re'ia
 4 Zebia, daughter of Meshullam, Yekhola her sister.
 These are the names of the men who were found
 at the gate in Thebes (?) and were taken prisoners :
 5 Yedonia b. Gemariah, Hosea b. Yathom, Hosea b.
 Nathum, Haggai his brother, Ahio b. Mahseiah (?).
 They have left (?)
 6 the houses which they had entered in Yeb, and the property which they had taken they have restored
 indeed to the owners of it, but they remembered (?)
 the sum of 7 120 kerashin. Moreover they will have no further authority here. Peace be to your house and your children till the Gods let us see (our desire) upon them.

This seems to refer to violence done at the time of the destruction of the temple.

The Words of Aḥiḳar.

Col. i. (Sachau, p. 148.)

- 1 These are the words of one named Aḥiḳar, a wise and ready scribe, which he taught to the son of his sister, whom he brought up.
- 2 *For he said "Surely he shall be a son to me."
Before his words Aḥiḳar had become great and had been counsellor of all Assyria*
- 3 and bearer of the seal of Senacherib king of Assyria, and he said: I indeed had no sons and on my counsel
- 4 *and words Senacherib king of Assyria used to (rely).
Then Senacherib king of Assyria died and there arose*
- 5 his son named Esarhaddon and became king in Assyria instead of Senacherib his father. At that time I said
- 6 "I am old and who shall be to me a son after me to do my service? and who shall be
- 7 *scribe and bearer of the seal to Esarhaddon the king,
as I was to Senacherib,*
- 8 king of Assyria?" Then I, Aḥiḳar, took Nadin, as he was called, the son of my sister, and brought him up,
- 9 *and taught him and showed great kindness to him,
and set him in the gate of the palace with me before the king among*
- 10 his courtiers. I brought him before Esarhaddon king of Assyria, and he told him whatever
- 11 he asked him. Then Esarhaddon king of Assyria loved him and said "Long life be to Aḥiḳar,

- 12 the wise scribe, counsellor of all Assyria, who set up as his son, when he had no son, the son of his sister."
- 13 When the king of Assyria had thus spoken, I bowed down and made obeisance, I Aḥiḳar, before Esarhaddon king of Assyria.
- 14 And in after days I, Aḥiḳar, when I saw the face of Esarhaddon king of Assyria favourable, I answered
- 15 and said before the king "I served Senacherib the king your father who was king before you
- 16 and now behold

The name is spelt here Aḥiḳar in deference to custom. It would be pronounced Aḥuyāḳar in Babylonian, Aḥyeḳar in Aramaic. Cf. Greek Ἀχιδάχαρος.

l. 1. "scribe" is a man learned in the law, a councillor. The ends of this and the following lines are difficult to restore. Possibly the papyrus is not correctly pieced together.

l. 16 is missing. Otherwise the text is continuous.

Col. ii. (Sachau, p. 151.)

- 17 I am old. I cannot work in the gate of the palace and do my service to you.
- 18 Behold, my son, Nadin by name, is full-grown. Let him take my place as scribe and counsellor of all Assyria, and let him
- 19 be seal-bearer to you. My wisdom also and my counsel I have taught him." Then answered Esarhaddon
- 20 king of Assyria and said to me, "So indeed it shall
be. Your son shall be scribe and seal-bearer to me
- 21 in your stead. He shall do your service for me."
Then I, Aḥiḳar, when I heard
- 22 the promise given, went away to my house and was resting in my house. And this my son
- 23 whom I had brought up and set in the gate of the palace before Esarhaddon, king of Assyria, among

- 24 his courtiers, I thought "He will seek my good in return for that which I have done for him." Then 25 the son of my sister whom I had brought up, imagined against me evil and said in his heart, 26 "Surely such words as these can I say, 'This Aḥikar, the old man, who was seal-bearer 27 to Senacherib the king your father has corrupted the land against you, for he is a counsellor and a skilful 28 scribe and by his counsel and words all Assyria was (guided).' Then Esarhaddon
29 will be greatly troubled when he hears words like these which I shall speak to him, and will kill Aḥikar." Then
30 when my son who was not my son, had devised this falsehood against me
31

1. 31 is lost. It must have related how he told his story to the king.

Col. iii. (Sachau, p. 153.)

- 32 Then was Esarhaddon king of Assyria filled with rage and said
33 "Let there come to me Nabusumiskun one of the officers of my father, who ate the bread of my father."- 34 The king said, "You are to seek Aḥikar wherever you may find him
35 and kill him. Even if this Aḥikar, the old man, is a skilful scribe
36 and counsellor of all Assyria, why should he corrupt the land against us?" Then when 37 the king of Assyria had thus spoken, he appointed with him 2 other men to see how 38 he would act. This Nabusumiskun the officer went away riding on a swift horse,

- 39 and those men with him. Then after three more days indeed
- 40 he, with other men who were with him, found me while I was walking among the vineyards.
- 41 And when this Nabusumiskun the officer saw me then he rent his clothes, lamenting,
- 42 and said, "Are you he, the skilful scribe, giver of good counsel, who
- 43 was a righteous man and by whose counsel and words all Assyria was (guided)?
- 44 The son whom you brought up, whom you set in the gate of the palace, has injured you (?); he has ruined you, and
- 45 an evil return is it." Then I, Ahikar, indeed was afraid. I answered and said to Nabusumiskun
- 46 the officer, "(Yes, and) also I am that Ahikar who formerly saved you from an undeserved death
- 47 when Senacherib the father of this Esarhaddon, the king, was angry with you
- 48 to kill you. Then I took you to my house. There I was supporting you

Col. iv. (Sachau, p. 155.)

- 49 as a man (deals) with his brother, and I hid you from him. I said, 'I have killed him,' until in after time and many days
- 50 after, I brought you before king Senacherib and took away your offences before him, and he did you no evil.
- 51 Moreover king Senacherib was well pleased with me that I had kept you alive and had not killed you. Now
- 52 according as I did to you, so do also to me. Do not kill me. Take me to your house until other days.

- 53 King Esarhaddon is kind as one friend to another.
He will remember me and desire my counsel.
Then you
54 shall bring me to him and he shall let me live."
Then answered Nabusumiskun the officer and said to me, "Fear not. Surely 55 you shall live, Ahikar, father of all Assyria, by whose counsel king Senacherib and all the army of Assyria
56 were (guided)." Then Nabusumiskun the officer said to his companions, those two men who were with him,
57 "Hearken indeed, and listen to me, and I will tell you my counsel, and it is a good counsel 58 exceedingly." Then answered those two men and said to him, "Tell us indeed, Nabusumiskun the officer, 59 what you think, and we will listen to you." Then answered Nabusumiskun the officer and said to them, "Hear me :
60 indeed this Ahikar was a great man and bearer of the seal to king Esarhaddon, and by his counsel and words
61 all the army of Assyria were (guided). Let us not kill him undeservedly. A slave, a eunuch of mine,
I will give to you.
62 Let him be killed between these two mountains
instead of this Ahikar, and when it is heard, the king will send other men 63 after us to see the body of this Ahikar. Then they will see the body of this eunuch my slave,

Col. v. (Sachau, p. 157.)

- 64 until afterwards Esarhaddon the king remembers
Ahikar and desires his counsel, and grieves

Col. vi. (Sachau, p. 160.)

- 79 What is stronger than wine foaming in the press?
80 The son who is trained and taught, and on whose feet the fetter is put shall prosper.
81 Withhold not thy son from the rod, if thou canst not keep him from wickedness.
82 If I smite thee, my son, thou wilt not die, and if I leave (thee) to thine own heart thou wilt not live.
83 A blow for a slave, rebuke for a maid, and for all thy servants discipline. A man who 84 Buys a licentious slave (or) a thievish maid brings anxiety into his house, and disgraces 85 The name of his father and his offspring with the reputation of his wantonness. The scorpion finds 86 Bread and does not eat in order that he may live, but it is too good for him to taste.
87 thou hast done the blood of the hind . . .
88 The lion devours (?) the hart in the secrecy of (his) den (?), and he . . .
89 And will shed his blood and eat his flesh : so is the contact of men. From fear of the lion 90 The ass left his burden and will not carry it. He shall bear shame before his fellow and shall bear
a burden which is not his, 91 And shall be laden with a camel's load. The ass made obeisance to the she-ass from love of her,
and the birds . . .
92 Two things are goodly (?), and of three there is pleasure to Shamash : one who drinks wine and gives it (to others), one who restrains (?) wisdom . . .
93 And he hears a word and does not reveal it. Behold, this is precious before Shamash. But one who drinks wine and does not give it to others

- 94 And his wisdom goes astray who sees? . . .
 Thou hast placed peoples
 the gods . . .

The "proverbs" begin with this column.

l. 79. "wine foaming" has been generally taken as "an ass braying" (cf. Syriac, No. 8), but "in the press," if right, makes this impossible.

ll. 80-85. Cf. Nos. 22-26 in the Syriac.

l. 92. Note the numerical maxim, common in wisdom-literature.

l. 93. "Shamash," the Babylonian god, the judge of right and wrong, rather than "the sun." So in l. 171.

Col. vii. (Sachau, p. 163.)

- 95 Even to gods is it precious, to it for ever belongs the kingdom, in heaven it is treasured up, for the lord of holiness has exalted it.
- 96 My son, do not chatter overmuch till thou reveal every word
- 97 which comes into thy mind, for in every place are their eyes and their ears; but keep watch over thy mouth, let it not be thy destruction (?).
- 98 More than all watchfulness watch thy mouth, and over what thou hearest harden thy heart, for a word is (like) a bird, and when he has sent it forth a man does not re-capture it (?).
- 99 Count the secrets of thy mouth, afterwards bring forth (advice) to thy brother for his help, for stronger is the ambush of the mouth than the ambush of fighting.
- 100 Suppress not the word of a king: it may be a healing to thy brother. Soft is the speech of a king, (but) it is sharper and stronger than a two-edged knife.
- 101 Behold before thee something hard: in presence of a king stand not. Swifter is his anger than lightning. Do thou take heed to thyself.

- 102 Let him not show it at thy words, that thou go away before thy time.
- 103 In presence of a king, if (a thing) is commanded thee, it is a burning fire; hasten, do it; let it not kindle upon thee and hide (?) thy hands, for
- 104 Also the word of a king is with wrath of heart. Why should wood strive with fire, flesh with a knife, a man with a king?
- 105 I have tasted even the bitter sloe, and the taste was strong, but there is nothing which is more bitter than poverty. Soft is the tongue of a king
- 106 But it breaks the ribs of a dragon, like death which is not seen. In a multitude of children let not thy heart exult, and in the lack of them be not ashamed.
- 107 A king is like the merciful (?): even his voice is high: who is he that can stand before him, except one who is like (?) him?
- 108 Glorious is a king to see, like Shamash, and precious is his sovereignty to those who walk on the earth in tranquillity.
- 109 A good vessel hides a thing within itself, but one that is broken lets it go forth.
- 110 The lion went near to greet the ass saying, "Peace be to thee." The ass answered and said to the lion.

* * *

- l. 95. The subject is probably "wisdom."
- l. 96. "chatter overmuch": the words are indistinct, but this gives the most suitable sense. ll. 97-99 are on the same subject, ll. 100-108 is another group.
- l. 103. "kindle": so the text. Perhaps it is a mistake.
- l. 107. "the merciful," i. e. God?
- l. 107. "except one who is like him": the phrase occurs several times, but its meaning is doubtful.
- l. 108. "Shamash," as in l. 93. Or it may be "the sun."
- l. 110. There is a gap after this line.

Col. viii. (Sachau, p. 166.)

- 111 I have lifted sand and carried salt, and there is nothing which is heavier than debt.
- 112 I have lifted chaff and taken up bran, and there is nothing which is lighter than (to be) a sojourner.

- 116 Many are the stars of heaven whose names man knows not: so man knows not men.
- 117 There is no lion in the sea, therefore they call the lion (?).
- 118 The leopard met the goat and she was cold. The leopard answered and said to the goat, "Come and I will cover thee with my hide."
- 119 The goat answered and said to the leopard, "What hast thou to do with me, my lord? Take not my skin from me." For he does not
- 120 Salute the kid except to suck its blood. The master (?) went to the sheep
- 121 I will be silent. The sheep answered and said to him, "Take for thyself what thou wilt take from us. We are thy sheep."
- 122 For it is not in the power of men to lift up their foot and to put them down without (the) gods.
- 123 For it is not in thy power to lift thy foot and to put it down. If there goes forth good from the mouth of men, it is well,

- 124 And if a curse shall go forth from their mouth,
 (the) gods will curse them. If the eyes of (the) gods are over men
- 125 A man cuts (?) wood in the dark and does not see,
 like a thief who breaks into (?) a house and escapes (?).

ll. 111, 112. Cf. Syriac, Nos. 45, 46.

l. 114. Two words not translated, as the meaning is unknown.

l. 117. The reading of the omitted word is uncertain.

l. 120. "The master": we might read "the bear," or "the wolf."

ll. 122, 123. Two forms of the same proverb.

l. 125. The translation and point are alike doubtful.

Col. ix. (Sachau, p. 169.)

- 126 Bend not thy bow and shoot not thy arrow at the righteous, lest God come to his help and turn it back upon thee. •
- 127 do thou, oh my son, gather every harvest
 and do every work, then thou shalt eat and be filled and give to thy children.
- 128 If thou hast bent thy bow and shot thy arrow at one who is more righteous than thou, the arrow is from (the) gods.
- 129 do thou, oh my son, borrow corn and wheat that thou mayest eat and be filled and give to thy children with thee.
- 130 A heavy loan and from a wicked man, borrow not, and if thou borrow take no rest to thy soul till
- 131 Thou pay back the loan. A loan is pleasant when there is need, but the paying of it is the filling of a house.
- 132 All that thou hearest thou mayest try by thy ears, for the beauty of a man is his faithfulness, and his hatefulness is the lying of his lips.

- 133 At first the throne is set up for the liar, but at last his lies shall find him out, and they shall spit in his face.
- 134 A liar has his neck cut, like a maiden of the south (?) who hides (?) (her) face, like a man who makes a curse
- 135 Which came not forth from (the) gods.
- 136 Despise not that which is in thy lot, and covet not some great thing which is withheld from thee.
- 137 Increase not riches, and lead not (thy) heart astray.
- 138 He who is not proud of (?) the name of his father and the name of his mother, let not the sun shine upon him, for he is an evil man.
- 139 From myself has my curse gone forth, and with whom shall I be justified? The son of my body has spied out (?) my house, and what can I say to strangers?
- 140 There was a cruel witness against me, and who then has justified me? From my own house went forth wrath, with whom shall I strive and toil?
- 141 Thy secrets reveal not before thy friends, that thy name be not lightly esteemed before them.

1. 126. "God" is plural with a singular verb, as in Hebrew, but it may be only a scribal error.

1. 131. "the filling of a house" is obscure. Perhaps it means "takes all that the house contains."

1. 132. "hatefulness," i. e. what makes him hateful.

1. 134 is very obscure. "of the south" is very doubtful.

11. 139, 140 are suitable to the second series of sayings found in the later versions.

Col. x. (Sachau, p. 172.)

- 142 With one that is higher than thou, do not go (?) to quarrelling (?).
- 143 With one that is a noble (?) and stronger than thou, contend not, for he will take

- 144 Of thy portion and will add it to his own.
 145 Behold, so is a little man who contends with a great man.
 146 Remove not wisdom from thee, and 147 Be not over crafty, and let not thy wisdom be extinguished.
 148 Be not sweet lest they swallow thee up. Be not bitter, lest they spit thee out.
 149 If thou, my son, wouldst be exalted, humble thyself before God
 150 Who humbles the lofty man and exalts the humble man.
 151 How can the lips of men curse when (the) gods curse not?
 152 Better is he that restrains . . .
 153 Let not thy soul love
 154 Heal them, except one who is like him.
 155 My hands shall destroy, and 156 God (?) shall turn back the mouth of the unjust (?) and shall tear out his tongue.
 157 Good eyes shall not be darkened, and good ears shall not be stopped, and a good mouth will love
 158 The truth and speak it.

Col. xi. (Sachau, p. 174.)

- 159 A man excellent in conduct and whose heart is good is like a strong bow which is bent by a strong man.

S. P. C. K. BOOKS FOR STUDENTS

Translations of Early Documents

A Series of texts important for the study of Christian origins. Under the Joint Editorship of the Rev. W. O. E. OESTERLEY, D.D., and the Rev. Canon G. H. Box, M.A.

The object of this Series is to provide short, cheap, and handy textbooks for students, either working by themselves or in classes. The aim is to furnish in translations important texts unencumbered by commentary or elaborate notes, which can be had in larger works.

EXTRACTS FROM PRESS NOTICES.

The Times Literary Supplement says: "These Jewish Apocalypses have a direct relation to the thought and religious ideals which confronted primitive Christianity in Palestine, and not only for their own sakes, but for their influence on the New Testament and Apostolic Christianity they deserve careful attention. Handbooks at once so scholarly and so readable will be welcomed by all interested in Christian origins."

The Church Quarterly Review says: "To the theological student who is anxious to know something of the circumstances and thought of the time during which Christianity grew up, and of the Jewish environment of the teaching of our Lord and the Apostles, there is no class of books more valuable than the later Jewish Apocrypha."

The Church Times says: "The names of the Editors are a guarantee of trustworthy and expert scholarship, and their work has been admirably performed."

The Tablet says: "A valuable series . . . well brought out and should prove useful to students."

Catholic Book Notes says: "The S. P. C. K. is to be congratulated on its various series of cheap and useful books for students."
